The nub of it is, can Kern-el carry Indiana?

And even Middlesex has been atmospherically dry for a long spell, too.

Water and Moxie are the favorite drinks in Columbus, Ohio, for a few days, at least.

The New England Fat Men's club could initiate both the leading presidential candidates without stretching the eligibility rules.

Although many inmates of the state insane asylum escape, it is a noteworthy fact that few of the fugitives remain long at liberty.

Joseph A. DeLoer admits that he is in the hands of his friends, which is tantamount to the assertion that he is a candidate for city representative from Montpelier.

The breakfast food people may yet be suing Wu Ting Fang for conspiracy in restraint of trade, for Wu is now advocating only two meals a day, with the breakfast eliminated; and we fail to note that he advises the use of "Sawdust" at either one of the two remaining meals.

Who is this "Frank D. Plumley" some newspapers are congratulating as the Republican nominee from the second Vermont district to Congress? Has the Northfield man acquired a new initial since his successful coup at St. Johnsbury? In Northfield the congressional nominee is known as Frank Plumley without any D. in it.

An explanation is due the citizens of those forty-two Vermont towns and cities which failed to have their grand lists filed with the secretary of state in the time set by law. If the officials at fault have not a good reason to advance for the dilatoriness, there may be a searching for other candidates for the places next spring, and it would serve the officials right, too.

THE HELPING HAND IN VERMONT.

People of Cabot were quick to resent, and then to refute, the assertion that their fire company was unneighborly in refusing to respond to an appeal for assistance at the time of the Lamberton mill fire in the town of Marshfield last Saturday; and they have apparently proven their case satisfactorily to those concerned. At least so it would seem. It is thus pleasing to note that the charge was really without foundation, however strong it may have seemed for the time being. The spirit of kindness, the willingness to go to self-sacrifice to assist a friend, a neighbor, or even a stranger, is so strong and so preponderant in Vermont that we should have been sorry to note any exception in this instance. It is a noteworthy characteristic of Vermonters that they are prompt to respond to worthy appeals for assistance; and they go further than that, they, without appeal, turn to and lend the helping hand.

How often do we read in the news columns of the various journals of the state that such and such a farmer, being indisposed and thus unable to harvest his crops at the critical period when they must be harvested, his neighbors in large numbers contributed of their time and strength to transfer the ripened crops into his barns, all without charge and with nothing but the heartfelt gratitude of the recipient to repay them, and considered amply sufficient reward at that? It is frequently the case that meritorious instances of this sort are read about; and it does one good to thus have proven that brotherliness is not gone from us and that the greedy, grasping grind for money does not dominate the hearts and minds of the country folk of Vermont to the exclusion of the best of human traits. Their souls have not become so narrowed that they refuse to lend a helping hand, even at some sacrifice to themselves.

Likewise, it is pleasing that the fire department of Cabot is able to free itself of the complaint of unneighborliness in this instance.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Publicity of Campaign Expenses.

Here and there an honest Vermont editor has the courage to demand a law governing the publicity of campaign expenses in this state, but in general the professional political instinct keeps the majority of them silent. Politics in this state is becoming a specially trained calling, and many newspapers hesitate about antagonizing the men in their communities who are regularly expected to "deliver the town" to the candidate who is able and willing to purchase their services. Samuel Beadell, Hiram Hanks, Peters Swize and Timothy Grasse have kinsmen and sympathizers in every town of this state. They do not desire to be tagged, because the tagged politician gets no votes. Doesn't this hint at corruption and unfairness strongly enough to make a law requiring publication of campaign expenses and registration of political workers an act of party and public decency?—Rutland Herald.

NORTHFIELD

Miss Emma Collins, a former Northfield girl, a graduate of the Northfield high school and for some time a teacher in the village schools, has recently graduated from the Massachusetts college of osteopathy. Miss Collins is visiting in town for a few weeks and will go from here to Philadelphia, where she expects to locate and carry on the practice of her profession.

Henry L. Kenyon arrived in town from St. Louis Sunday morning and has been busy receiving a warm welcome from old friends. He expects to remain here for some weeks. His daughter, Mrs. Allen, and family are in good health and enjoy their new home in St. Louis. Mr. Allen, who was ill, has now fully recovered his health.

John E. Hissong, assistant at the U. S. weather bureau station, has been relieved at this point and ordered to Portland, Oregon, where he and Mrs. Hissong will go as soon as they receive transportation. Mr. Hissong has proved a very efficient man and his transfer is in the nature of a promotion. Mr. Howard of Key West has been appointed to succeed Mr. Hissong, and has already arrived and taken up his duties as assistant to Local Forecaster W. A. Shaw.

Letters have been received from time to time from Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Cushman, who are touring Europe. They are now in Venice, Italy; from there they will go to Germany and Austria, returning to London the latter part of this month, and take passage for home early in August. They report a very pleasant trip thus far.

Capt. and Mrs. E. A. Shuttleworth arrived in town the latter part of the week. Capt. Shuttleworth left Sunday evening for the West. He will stop a short time in Montana and go from there to the army manoeuvres in Seattle, Wash. Mrs. Shuttleworth will remain some time in town and is getting the old home in order for her aunt, Miss Moore, who expects to settle here and keep the house open, a good housekeeper having been obtained. The townspeople will be glad to see the old Bradford place open once more.

The adjourned hearing in the case of Luther Knapp for breach of peace and assault was heard Monday morning. Mr. Knapp pleaded guilty to the charge and he was given a fine of the alternate, 30 days in jail. He paid. Prentice Ellis was also arrested for third offense for drunkenness and found guilty. He could not pay his fine and was remanded to county jail for 63 days.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our many friends for their kindness and sympathy in our recent bereavement; also for the many floral tributes. We would especially mention the kind assistance given by the Ladies of the G. A. R.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Proulx.
